WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 2, 1857.

JOHN WILSON CROKER .- This distinguished author and reviewer died in London, on the 11th of was a voluminous writer, and has produced much that will live long after him. Aside from his labors as an editor and reviewer, which were manifold and valuable, his works consist chiefly of letters, pamphlets, essays, &c. with which few readers on this ide of the Atlantic are familiar. Their topics, indeed, were comparatively local. He is best known in this country by his annotated edition of Boswell's Johnson, and his articles in the Quarterly Review, which he founded, in 1809, in connection with Scott and Canning. The former-notwithstanding Macaulay's smart judgment that its merits were on a par with those of a certain leg of mutton on which Dr. Johnson dined, on his way from London to Oxford, and which the old bear pronounced to be "as bad as bad could be; ill-fed, ill-killed, ill-kept, and ill-dressed,"-is still a work of great interest and value. The Quarterly Review, it is well known, has always ranked among the very ablest of the British periodicals.

Mr. Croker sat in Parliament for a full quarter of a century, and for twenty-one years of the period Habley, who was in company with Baker, was also held the office of Secretary to the Admiralty. His intelligence, force, and acuteness rendered him very effective in Parliament, and twenty-five years ago his prospects for a brilliant public career were excellent. On the passing of the reform bill, however, he declared, in a fit of party spleen, that he would "never sit in a reformed House of Commons," and at once closed his political life. He was undoubtedly one of the most inveterate and unmitigated Tories that ever lived. Of violent and bitter prejudices, political and personal, and not, it is said, excessively scrupulous in either relation, he enjoyed perhaps a less degree of respect and favor than almost any Englsshman of his calibre in our BAYARD TAYLOR .- We are sorry to see that the genius of Bayard Taylor is running to the surface. He is becoming a mere literal chronicler of outward sights. His recent letters from the North of Europe are as arid and superficial as the soil over which he trod. Instead of abounding in beautiful suggestions; and sparkling with the dews of poetry, as his letters once did, they are as parched and crisp as a pasture field in a severe drouth. He has lost his subjectivity. His inner life seems to have been drunken up by the consuming blaze of novelty. He has traveled too much for his own good. Let him marry that German love of his, and live for a while. He greatly needs the culture of life's trials.

Some kasty thinkers imagine that the stability and power of England are about to be severely tried by the present complications in her Eastern affairs. Those who imagine this know little of England. Such complications act upon her national strength simply as the storm acts upon the young oak through whose branches it sweeps. So far from snapping a single vital fibre, they but send the roots of her power deeper into the mould of the public heart, and thrill its marvellous green summit with fresher and intenser life. To a government of genuine vitality, trials like these are only lessons of greatness in the school of national life.

The Persian treaty is published at last, and turns out as we supposed it would, to be a remarkably ordinary instrument. It throws no light whatever upon the mysterious language and gestures with which Senator Mason hurried the appropriation for the Persian mission through Congress. The motive of that piece of Senatorial hocus-pocus still remain an inexplicable secret. Possibly we shall Aknow it when the mission is filled. The secret may come out, when the Minister goes in.

A Virginia editor tells about a prodigious calf that he saw at "the Springs." The editor was probably drinking from one of the springs when he discovered the prodigy.

[For the Louisville Bulletin.] FALL OF THE OLD CHARTER OAK. A dirge for the Oak, for the brave Old Oak;

He has bowed his head at last; Like a monarch crowned did he stand his ground When the storms went whistling past, Twice a thousand times have the gala-chimes

Of the joyous spring been rung Since the brave Oak stood in the wild green wood And the birds in his branches sung.

When the heretic James set the States in flames, With a bigot's ruthless hand, The Oak in its pride his power defied, And ai led a feeble land.

A dirge for the Oak. No woodman's stroke Dishonored the royal tree, For he bore our part and his kind old heart Held the Charter of the Free.

Let the sword be red till each tyrant's head Lies low as the dust he trod; But the fitting stroke for thee, Old Oak, Was the kindly breath of God.

When our soil was young-when the war whoop rung Through the green wilds loud and long, Here the Indian sped, with his hatchet red. And reveled with dance and song.

But the Pale Face flew in his winged canoe To the Red Men's free, green land, And he furled his sail to follow their trail, And he marched with ax in hand.

And he sought the wood where the Old Tree stood Like a king, with its towering crest; Then kindled his eye and his arm aimed high The ax at its sacred breast.

But the Indian cried, "'Twas our fathers' pride-'Twas the landmark of our sires; Let the Oak be saved that through ages waved, Where they kindled their council fires.'

So they spared the tree that was left to be The glory of future years; But its reign is past and it falls at last, And a nation is moved to tears.

A dirge for the Oak, for the brave Old Oak, In his grandeur doomed to die; Like a monarch crowned did he stand his ground When the storms went whistling by.

Let the death-bells ring for the Forest King, Let a parting knell be tolled; Make not his grave with coward or slave. For he fell like a warrior bold.

A FIGHT BETWEEN TWO MINNESOTA DELEGATES. Our readers are aware that the convention to form a constitution for Minnesota has divided itself into two bodies, one Republican and the other Democratic, each claiming the ascendency. A joint committee of conference was appointed by them to compromise the difficulty. During their session, on the 25th, a misunderstanding occurred between August, at the advanced age of seventy-seven. He Gov. Gorman, a member of the committee from the Democratic convention, and Mr. Wilson, a member of the committee from the Republican Convention. Gorman knocked Wilson down with his cane, and inflicted several blows on him. The latter, on rising, seized his cane, and was about to inflict similar punishment on Gorman, who, however, fled.

> Horse Thief Arrested .- Some weeks ago, horse was stolen from Mr. Shockeney, livery-stable keeper. The thief afterwards offered the horse at a very low price to Mr. John Shively. Mr. S. is always open for a bargain, and purchased him. After Mr. Shively got possession of him, Mr. Shockeney claimed him, and the former had to give him

While Mr. Shively was promenading about the fair grounds yesterday, he noticed the man who sold him the horse. Officer Lambourne's services were called into requisition, who arrested the thief. He gave his name as S. A. Baker. A man named J. S. arrested.

More Pickpockets Arrested .- At the railroad depot yesterday afternoon, R. J. Ward, Esq., was relieved of his pocket-book containing $125. Officer Bligh had noticed four Englishmen in the crowd about the depot, who, soon after the robbery, decamped. He traced them to Green street, where he succeeded in arresting three of them-the fourth, who it is believed had the money, making his escape. They gave their names as Wm. Lee, Jas. Denman. and R. Watkins. Two gentlemen from Indiana were also robbed of their pocket-books yesterday, each containing $30 or $40. One of them did not care for the money, but he had some very valuable papers which he would like to recover

A NEW BOOK BY MARION HARLAN,-The anunciation of a new work by the accomplished and popular authoress of "Alone" will naturally awaken much interest. Messrs. Crump & Welsh, Fourth street, have just received "Moss Side," the latest product of the fruitful genius of this most elegant and able Southern authoress. It is a story of real life, full of simple, natural pathos, true in all its delineations, and appealing with wonderful power to all our nobler sentiments.

The American ladies are the best dressed in the world. Not even in Paris, the center of fashion, are gayer and richer costumes to be found than may be noticed, en promenade, in our great cities.—Press.

This opinion may or may not be correct, but w presume the editor of the Press is aware that gay and rich costumes hold about the same relation to good dressing that bright colors do to painting or beautiful words to poetry. Indeed, we suspect that the very gayety and richness of the costumes of American ladies constitute their chief offense against perfect taste in dress.

A late number of the London Athenaum conains a curious and recondite paper, entitled "History and Mystery of Tobacco," and signed Andrew Steinmetz. This learned inquirer, doubting "the exclusive claim of America to tobacco, and the practice of smoking it," undertakes to demonstrate in the paper in question "the reasonableness of the contrary and continued belief." If he can make out a tolerably clear case against America, we suppose we shall have to yield the honor.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river continues to fall slowly. Last evening there were 4 feet 4 inches water in the canal. Our St. Louis exchanges report the Missouri river getting low and difficult of navigation. It had only 3 feet water in the channel on Saturday.

The Highfiyer .- This fine packet arrived last night, having been detained by heavy fog. She will return to St. Louis at noon. The H. has fine accommodations and is well officered.

The Woodford .- This splendid steamer arrived from New Orleans last evening. Messrs. McLaughlin and Benedict have laid us under obligations for late dates. The W. will return to New Orleans tomorrow evening. She has fine accommodations.

THE MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—The most crowded and brilliant assemblage ever seen in the vast Hall of the Mechanics' Institute filled the aisles and galleries last night. It was a magnificent display of the fairer portion of creation. Bright eyes and "lips like parted rose leaves riven" were seen on every side. Some of the most celebrated beauties of our State, and many from abroad, graced the hall with their presence. It was by far the most success evening of the exhibition. The crowd of visitors was too great to admit of any examination of the articles on exhibition. We presume that during the whole week the Institute will be quite as attractive as it was last night.

THE MASONIC FAIR .- A gay and charming company filled the great hall and the ball room of the Masonic Temple again last night. The arrangement of the tables and their decorations is peculiarly appropriate and elegant. Each Blue Lodge and the Council and Chapter and Encampment are all represented by splendidly decorated and tastefully designed stalls, which are presided over by severa beautiful and attractive ladies.. We shall take occasion during the week to notice these new Ledges in detail ORPHANS' FAIR .- The attractions of the Mechan ics' Institute, the Masonic Fair, and the Theater should not prevent our citizens and the strangers who are sojourning amongst us from attending and liberally patronizing the Fair for the Orphans. care for the poor and the orphan is a work which must commend itself to the heart of every one. It is not only taught by religion, but is consorant with the instincts of humanity. The Fair will be continued every evening during the week at Mozart Hall.

We have received the following despatch. It explains itself:

NEW YORK, Aug. 31. The Breckinridge Company's drafts on John Thompson are paid at their depot, 98 Greenwich street, New York. J. & W. CAIRNS, of Cloverport.

We learn by a private dispatch that the Chemung Bank of New York has suspended.

A BEAUTIFUL SPIRE .- That feature about our city which will now attract the first gaze of admiration on the part of the approaching traveler, is the elegant and graceful spire of the Catholic Cathedral which has just been completed. Its proportions are most thoroughly admirable, and the elegant gilt cross surmounting the heaven-kissing steeple, adds much to the beauty and completeness of the edifice.

A MONSTER SNAKE .- A rattle-snake of such monstrous proportions that it would have been at home amid the boa-constrictors of Africa, was received vesterday from Dr. Hall, of Owensboro. It was taken to the Mechanics' Fair, where it will gratify the curiosity of all reptile-mongers.

COUNTERFEITERS ARRESTED .- Two men calling themselves John Simpson and James Johnson were arrested on the Fair Ground yesterday, on a charge of attempting to pass counterfeit bills. Other bills the same character were found in their possession.

Among the visitors at the Fair yesterday we observed Col. John O'Fallen, of St. Louis. learn that Col. O'Fallon is now the guest of Mr. A. J. Ballard.

INDIAN DIFFICULTIES .- The St. Paul Times has letter from the Rev. Thomas S. Williamson, da ted Pajutazee, August 10. On the 8th Maj. Cullen, Superintendent of Indian Affairs, and Judge Pritchard, Special Commissioner from Washington, had council at the Upper Sioux Agency, with the principal men of the Waupetonwan and Sissitonwan They told them the reasons why the President wish ed them and the Dacotahs to punish the murderer of the settlers about Spirit Lake and the Upper Des Moines, by finishing the business of exterminating Inkpaduta and his party, but declined to pay them for the job. The Indians consequently refused, and were informed that the Government of the United States would send men to exterminate the murderers, and that, if they should happen to kill innocent Dacotahs, the blame would rest on the Dacotahs themselves.

In a postcript Mr. Williamson states that he has just heard a report that the Ihanktonwans have cut off a party of United States soldiers entirely, and fears it is the party of Mr. Nobles engaged making the road, to which the Ihanktowans are hostile.

Encroachments of the Chippewas.—It is authentically reported that a number of the Chippewa Indians have become very troublesome to the settlers between Cambridge, on the Rum River, and Sunrise City. They commenced their depredations about a month since by a series of petty thieving, but having grown bold in consequence of toleration, about a month since by a series of petty thieving, but, having grown bold in consequence of toleration, they now take every thing that comes in their way, asserting their right to do so by a significant presentation of the knife and tomahawk.

The St. Paul Light Cavalry have been called out, by Gov. Medary, to make an incursion about fifty miles northeast of this city, to the neighborhood of Cambridge, where they expected to encounter a host of savares.

MR. WHEATON .- A foreign correspondent of the New York Herald, writing from Heidelberg, makes the following flattering allusion to the fame of our lamented countryman:

lamented countryman:

As to the University, it is chiefly renowned in Germany for its law department, in which the celebrated Mittemeyer gained his laurels as Professor of International Law. It is pleasant for an American to know that this great jurist was long in the habit, when giving to his class the names of the book a which he desired them to study, of saying, "And first of all, young gentlemen, I give you the name of the great American writer, Mr. Wheaton, the best authority in any language on the subject of international law."

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 1, 1857.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 1, 1857.

Gentlemen: An editorial appeared in Saturday's Journal with relation to Hon. W. P. Custis being a near relation to Washington. The statements thus far were correct, yet wrong so far as to his being the nearest relative living. There are nearer relationships than that of this honorable sage in our city, who have resided here for years, yet it is not the Main street merchant, nor the Broadway bell-maker, as stated in the Journal. Mr. J. G. Dodge happens to be in no way related to either Washington or Mr. Custis, and I think it is doing the gentleman irjustice to force a relationship upon him which does not exist, nor one that he does not claims. Honor to whom honor is due.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, Louisville, Aug. 25, 1857.

To the Market Masters, Licease Inspector, Chief of Police, and to all whom it may concern:

It is proper, for the general information of the people in and out of market, as well as for a guide to the duty of officers, and to secure the rights of dealers in market, to declare that hucksters are not only not allowed in, but are actually forbidden from the markets, both by the charter and ordinances of the city. It is true that by Art. 6 hucksters may be licensed as follows:

be licensed as follows:

SEC. 3. Said Council shall have power to license and tax, and to provide, by ordinance, for licensing and taxing—

First. Any retail grocer, confectioner, victualer, hawker, huckster, peddler, or other retailer of any goods, wares, merchandize, provisions, or other articles, not selling malt, spirituous, vinous, or fermented liquors, at not more than one hundred dollars each. lars each.

thorised. It is clear that the charter constitutes them retail dealers, and puts them on the footing of retail grocers and others not selling marketing; and on the footing of merchants selling goods, wares, merchandise, &c., who may be licensed at $100; and, if compelled to take a license as merchant retailers, they are exempt from ad valorem for the same year. To effectuate this section, the only clause of the charter in which hucksters are mentioned, the General Council copied part of the first of this third section ter in which hucksters are mentioned, the General Council copied part of the first of this third section, and graded the price of a license for the persons named in it without any distinction whatever of hucksters from the rest, and it has been in contravention of the charter and this ordinance that hucksters and retail dry goods people have foisted themselves in the markets of the city. The ordinance is as follows:

Approved Aug. 6, 1852. Approved Aug. 6, 1852.
Persons doing business in the markets are not licensed persons; the stalls in the markets are rented to resident butchers, and places are allowed to country people supplying the market with vegetables and other things from the country. No license can qualify the townspeople for doing business in the market-houses or the spaces thereof. Great injustice is done by small dealers in the markets, called bucksters, hawkers, and peddlers, by whom articles. hucksters, hawkers, and peddlers, by whom articles of marketing are enhanced in price upon those who rely upon the markets for supplies of daily food. Public attention is turned to this evil, and law, propriety, and necessity are imperative that the tice shall forthwith cease. The power to establish markets in the city and to regulate them is given in the 6th article, 15th section of the charter, and the power to punish forestalling, regrating, and engrossing within the city limits is given by the 16th section of that article. The General Council has by ordinance exercised the power of the 16th section as follows:

No. 275. An ordinance as to forestalling, regrating, and agrossing.

Forestalling is the buying or offering to buy any article of marketing coming to market.

Regrating is the buying any article of marketing, with a view to its being re-sold in market, or the selling of any such article bought in a market of selling of any such article bought, in a market of the city or on its way to market. Engrossing is the buying or otherwise getting the control of quantities of marketing, with a view to enhance the price thereof in the market; and any person who shall forestall, regrate, or engross any article of marketing in this city, or to be concerned therein as buyer or seller, or interested in such purchase or sale, shall be fined not less than five nor more than twenty dollars; and ordinance No. 181 be and the same is hereby repealed.

and the same is hereby repealed.

The U. S. Army band from Newport barracks, probably the finest in the West, is delighting the crowd with its delightful music.

A number of notabilities have arrived.

The prospects for a brilliant week are greater than ever. We may sum up the weather with one adjective-delicious.

We copy an article from the London News in regard to the difficulty existing between Spain and Mexico. It makes no allusion whatever to the clergy of Mexico, who have played no unimportant part in this matter to avenge themselves on Comonfort. A letter from Washington says :-"The last news from Madrid is not favorable to a settlement of the difficulties between Spain and Mexico. But it is hardly possible that the dispute can proceed to the length of a war. Spain is in no condition to attack Mexico, and if she were, could not hope to reconquer the country. She could wage hostilities in no other way than by an invasion, and it is a fact which no Spanish Statesman can overlook, that the occupation of any part of the soil of Mexico by a Spanish army, would be the signal of active interference by the United States. The latest intelligence from Mexico clearly shows that government and people both look with confidence to this country for aid even in anticipation of hostilities, and they are willing to assign to this Republic important privileges, and even a further slice of national territory, for a present supply of cash. I continue of the opinion that this disagreement will be settled at Rome, and will result in restoring to the clergy some portion of the privileges of which they have been deprived by the firmness and energy of Comonfort."

IMPORTANT EXPEDITION. - Exploration of the Colorado River .- On the 5th inst., Lieut. J. C. Ives, under orders from the Secretary of War, will leave New York for San Francisco, to make preparations at the latter place for an exploring expedition up the Colorado river. Lieut. Ives takes with him a small steamer, to be employed in making hydrographic surveys. A party of some forty or fifty men will be enlisted in California.

This is one of the most important movements for some time undertaken by the government. Little or nothing is known of the Colorado, of its fitness for navigation, or the country through which it runs, although it is the second river in size west of the Rocky Mountains.

Lieut. Ives will ascend the river as far as possible in his steamer, and then endeavor to reach the headwaters with horses and pack mules.

Money matters are pretty tight in New York. The Courier and Enquirer of Monday says: "The extreme difficulty of negotiating business paper is more apparent than before. Strictly prime parer can be passed in small sums only. Some of the banks discounted yesterday about three-fourths their average or ordinary amounts-but the quantity of business paper unavailable is very large. We cannot mention rates of discount with any approach to current quotations. The minimum to-day is 11/4 to 11/2 per month; but there is a large amount of good paper that is refused even at 21/2 to 3 per cent. or still DEATHS IN THE NAVY .- The Navy Department has received intelligence of the death of Commodore Stephen Cassin. He died at Georgetown.

Commodore Cassin has been in the naval service fifty-seven years. He entered in 1800, and was on the retired list at the time of his death. He commanded the Ticonderoga, under Commodore Mc-Donough, on Lake Champlain, in 1814.

Intelligence has also reached the Department, through private sources, of the death of Lieut. Wm. H. Cheever, of the U. S. ship St. Lawrence, at Rio Janeiro, on the 18th of last month.

The bark Express, on board of which were discovered upwards of forty-eight thousand smuggled segars on Wednesday last, by the New York Custom House officers, was seized on a charge of having been caught in the act of violating the revenue laws of the United States, in attempting to smuggle foreign goods into the port. The goods seized on board of her amount to several hundred dollars in value.

ARREST FOR FORGING LAND WARRANTS. - The Commissioner of Pensions has been informed of the re-arrest and confinement in jail, to await trial, of Jas. R. Buchanan, of Jacksonport, Ark., for forging

THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH .- Notwithstanding the present failure in laying the Atlantic Telegraph, the English press generally speaks in confident terms of ultimate success. The following extracts will serve to show the general tone:

will serve to show the general tone:

[From the London Star.]

Loss Consequent upon the Failure.—The real cause of accident to the Atlantic cable appears to have arisen from some want of skill on the part of the man in charge of the break. There were two men on board the Niagara who had charge of the breaks in turn, under the superintendence of Mr. Bright, the engineer. The first and best breaksman had retired from his task and the man who succeeded him did from his task, and the man who succeeded him did not sufficiently account for the pitching of the ves-sel and putting the "dead nip" on, and when the stern of the Niagara was in the trough of the sea the suddenness of the recoil broke the cable. It is the suddenness of the recoil broke the cable. It is now thought that, in any future experiments, relays of breakmen will be necessary, to as to avoid the chance of their being overworked or becoming exhausted. It is estimated that the outside loss the company will sustain in consequence of the failure will be £25,000. The experiment, as an experiment, has given general satisfaction. It is fully expected that at least one-half of the 335 miles now in the Atlantic will be recovered. All that is within 400 fathoms will be got up, but that part in deep sea at 1,700 fathoms will, in all probability, not be recovered, as it is considered that the strain put on by the friction of the water will be greater than the cable in the deep sea could bear. This cable will, it is understood, be forthwith hauled up.

[From the London News, Aug. 13.]

[From the London News, Aug. 13.] Causes and Incidents of the Failure—Sanguine Hopes.—The first attempt to connect the New World with the Old by means of the Submarine Telegraph has proved a failure. In this result there is much for immediate regret—none for permanent dis-gement. The Atlantic will not be annihilated cause for immediate regret—none for permanent couragement. The Atlantic will not be annihilated this year, but the success of the great experiment is only postponed for a season. Our readers will remember the elaborate accounts with which we have from time to time presented them, of the manufacture and stowage of the 2,500 miles of cable destined to stretch from shore to shore along the bottom of the Atlantic main. They will not have forgotten the report of that characteristic meeting at Valentia under the genial presidency of Lord Carlisle, when every topic of allusion and amplification that could possibly be pressed into the service was lavishly devoted to the purpose of speeding the great enterprise on its way with appropriate rhetorical embellishments. The original plan of laying down the cable had been that the Agamemnon and Niagara, each with half the length of cable on board, should proceed to an agreed point in the mid-Atlantic, effect a junction between the two detached portions of the line, and thence steam in opposite directions, eastward to Ireland and westward to Newfoundland. ward to Ireland and westward to Newfoundland. This plan was abandoned; and it was determined that the entire length of the vast coil should be spread along the ocean bottom from west to east in one continuous operation.

From Valentia harbor the great ships set forth, the American frigate Niagara having the task arsigned her of "paying out" the first portion of the cable. She was waited on through the ocean by the Susquehannah; the famous Agamemnon, her partner in the great enterprise, was attended in like manner by the Cyclops and the Leopard. The first start was an unlucky one. A fracture took place at the distance of less than four miles from the Irish shore. The damage thus occasioned was speedily repaired, and the five vessels again on Saturday, the Sth of August steamed out into the Atlantic. Till 8th of August, steamed out into the Atlantic. the Monday following all went on prosperthe Monday following all went on prosperously. The weather was favorable, the machinery worked admirably, a depth of 2,000 fathoms had been reached, and some 300 miles of distance. The telegraphic communications with Valentia were kept up withic communications with Valentia were kept up with out interruption. On Monday evening a heavy swell set in, and a powerful under-current was ex-perienced. This increased through the night of Monday and the early morning of Tuesday. At about 3½ o'clock on Tuesday morning it was found that though the vessel was only making some three or four knots an hour, the cable was paying out five, six, and sometimes even seven knots.

At this rate it was obvious that the quantity of wire on board would be exhausted before the Newfoundland shore was reached. It became necessary to tighten the strain on the cable, and this was accordingly done till the pressure reached 3,000 pounds. This was at 33% c'clock on Tuesday morning. There was a heavy swell running at the moment that the full increased power was thus put on the break; the stern of the Niagara was low down in the trough of the sea. As she rose on the back of the waves the extra strain thus occasioned was more than the strength of the cable could bear. It gave way under the pressure, and, parting at some distance from the ship's stern, it sank down like lead through the mighty waters on that portion of the telegraphic plateau between Ireland and Newfoundland where the Atlantic reaches its maximum depth of not less than 2,000 fathoms. At the time of the severance the Niagara had made from 260 to 280 miles in a dithe Niagara had made from 260 to 280 miles in a direct course from Valentia harbor, and the length of the cable that had been let go was about 380 miles. It is remarkable enough that a somewhat similar failure has hitherto attended almost all these submarine enterprises in the first instance. The provisions of science are extraordinary, but they cannot quite dispense with the teachings of experience. The general opinion amongst those most qualified to form a judgment appears to be, that we have learned enough in this first essay to render the success of the enough in this first essay to render the success of the next attempt morally certain. Two important points have been decisively set at rest by what has already been achieved. The unparalleled length of the cable, and the vast depth to which it was sunk, have presented no obstacles to its telegraphic working; until the final disaster occurred, messages were flashed with the most perfect success along 2,500 miles length of wire, a portion of which was submerged to the depth of very nearly two miles in the ocean.

Another point relates to the rate at which the cable can be paid out. It has been conclusively proved that there is no obstacle to laying it down at the rate of five miles per hour, in the greatest depth of water that exists, on the proposed line of submersion, between Ireland and Newfoundland.

The principal defect appears to be in the "paying out gear" the machinery by which the cable is out gear," the machinery by which the cable is delivered from the ship's deck into the ocean. Another difficulty to be overcome in sinking a cable of such length to a depth so great—a difficulty which has probably been more fully demonstrated by the results of this experiment than it could have been by previous calculation—is the great force of the under-current. While the direct course of the Niagara was only about 280 miles, the expenditure of cable was about 580—a difference which a priori could scarcely have been calculated upon. In the next venture every circumstance of this kind will be taken fully into calculation; the mechanism for passing the cable into the water will no doubt receive all those improvements of which it is susceptible, and, if the time be so fortunately chosen as to secure three weeks of favorable weather (a circumstance) three weeks of favorable weather (a circumstance by no means immaterial), there can be no reason by no means immaterial), there can be no whatever for despairing of ultimate success.

Postage Stamps Cut from Stamped Envelopes are Valueless.—Inquries continue to be made at the Department why stamps cut from stamped envel-

Department why stamps cut from stamped envelopes cannot be used in prepayment of letters in the same manner as ordinary postage stamps. We have been requested to reiterate the decision some time since made by the Post-master General. The principal reasons why this cannot be permitted are:

First, the law gives no value to such stamps, and makes no provisions for their use, except when connected with and forming part of the envelopes prepared under the law, with suitable water marks, &c., to prevent frauds. Second, letters in stamped envelops may be carried outside of the mail, and, when so carried, it is believed that the stamps are seldom, if ever, cancelled. These are controlling reasons, and should at once recommend themselves to every reflecting person.—Washington States.

M. Perrotin, the Paris publisher, has bought all the furniture and books that were in Beranger's bedroom at the moment of his death. He has ordered his architect to build in his own house a chamber of exactly the same form and dimensions. The paper of Beranger's room will be taken off by means of a damping process, and transferred to the fac-simile apartment, which, when the relics shall be arranged precisely as they were arranged in the poet's last day, will be exhibited to the public. The exhibition will doubtless prove as attractive as Rousseau's hermitage at Montmorency.

ROBBING CHILDREN .- The following communiation appears in the London Times. Dickens tells similar story in relation to robberies of children, but it seems the practice is an every-day occurrence in London. The London Times correspondent

There are two children, aged 14 and 12 respec-tively, who every evening leave a house in Hart street, Covent Garden, with instructions to join in street, Covent Garden, with instructions to join in play with others more innocent than themselves, and finally to entice them home to a house of ill-fame. They may be easily recognized; the elder is an attractive little girl about 14, dressed in light attire, and her companion, who appears about two years younger, wears a dark brown dress. Two evenings ago, a little boy of respectable parents was unfortunately induced to accompany them home, and from the account he gave, I can only say that the loss of nearly everything of value that he had about him was the least part of the evils he had to detail. Any one may see these children in the neighborhood of Covent Garden.

India—Atroclous Treatment of European Ladies.—
The accounts we are receiving of the torture of the European ladies by the mutineers are heart rending. One letter says:
One of these wretches had part of a lady's dress for his xummerbund—he had seized a lady from Delhi, stripped her, violated, and then murdered her in the most cruel manner, first cutting off her breasts. He said he was sorry he had not an opportunity of doing more than he had done. Another lady who hid herself under a bridge, was treated in the same manner, then hacked to pieces, and her mangled remains thrown out on the plain. We found a pair of boots, evidently those of a girl six or seven years of age, with the fectin them. They had been cut off just above the ankle. We hung many other villains and burned the villages as we came along. A man who witnessed the last massacre in Delhi, who had gone there as a spv, gives a horrid account of it, stating that little children were thrown up in the air and caught on the points of bayonets, or cut at as they were falling with tulwars.

Another adds: "As soon as the mutineers entered Delhi a great many Englishmen and Englishwomen

Another adds: "As soon as the mutineers entered Delhi a great many Englishmen and Englishwomen and children escaped, but numbers could not do so, and those who did not escape were subjected to outrage worse than death. The daughter of an English clergyman was driven through the streets of Delhi naked, then subjected to unsneakable our grees lish clergyman was driven through the streets of Delhi naked, then subjected to unspeakable our rages by an infuriated soldiery, and afterward cut to pieces with swords. "In Delhi six European ladies had taken refuge in a room; one of them, very young and beautiful, concealed herself under a sofa. The other five were subjected to outrage by the mutinous soldiery, and then beheaded. The blood trickled under the sofa, and the young female concealed there betrayed herself by uttering a shriek. She was seized and taken to the harem of the King of Delhi.

"No one can tell, none but the Almighty, who has no doubt heard the smothered prayer for mercy, can tell what our sisters especially have gone through. The exquisite nature of the torture they inflict has The exquisite nature of the torture they inflict has something awful in it. For instance, they dragged forth a poor woman, enceinte, then cut off her breasts, so that they might mock her, then vilely treated her—so vilely that the pen cannot depict the horror—and then, a gasping body, they threw her into the jungle to be treated by beasts and birds of prey more merciful than man.

"They burned one whole family, from grand-father to grand children, alive! Others the killed by inches, cutting off the nose, then the ears, then fingers, then toes, etc.; children they killed—little innocent babes."

DEATH OF MRS. CATHARINE VAN RENSSELAER COCHRAN.—The death of this venerable lady is an-nounced in our paper to-day. She died last evening. Although from her advanced age and impaired strength it was known her years could not be much longer protracted, her decease is the occasion of general and sympathising interest. She was among the oldest of our inhabitants in years, and among the oldest of the residents of our city. She was born at Albany on the 20th February, 1781, the daughter of Major General Schuyler, the great revolutionary patriot, whose name is so illustrious in our revolutionary annels and for one-half of the last control. tionary annals, and for one-half of the last century in all the great events which have left their records in the history of New York. The infant years of Mrs. Cochran's life were passed in Albany, and in the period of the revolution she was exposed to the thrilling incidents of the Mohawk frontier. In 1794—we believe at the instance of President Washington. of General Malcolm, an emigrate Massack through the Oneida wilderness to Oswego, then still in occupation of a British garrison. Her first husband was Samuel Malcolm, Esq., son of General Malcolm, an eminent citizen of New York, and a distinguished soldier of the Revolution. He died in early life some forty years since at Utica, where he, with his family, then resided. Several years subsequently, she married our late venerable townsman, Major James Cochran, son of Dr. Cochran, the Surgeon-General of the Revolutionary Army, and with him and her family settled in this place in the year 1825. They cleared the forest for the habitation, which, with her family, she has continued to occupy to the hour of her death. There she has lived for thirty-three years, honored, beloved, and respected by all around her. Honored for her noble family connection, made illustrious by great deeds in our Colonial and Revolutionary history. She was closely allied by blood to the fami-lies of Van Rensselaer, Van Cortland, and Livings-ton, and sister-in-law of the late General Alexander Hamilton. She was beloved for her estimable virtues, and her kind and courteous manners, and respected for her mental culture and high intellect-

A STEAM HOD CARRIER-Pat Used Up .- We stood for a few minutes, yesterday, looking at the operations of a steam hod carrier, at the new building for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's office, at the corner of Third street and Whiting's alley at the corner of Third street and Whiting's alley.—
The motive power was a small locomotive-looking steam engine, upon wheels, which, although stationary at the time, looked as though it could be moved readily from point to point. A mammoth hod, holding twelve or fifteen times the quantity of bricks and mortar which could be carried by the stoutest laborer, was whisked to the top of the build-ing by the steam hod carrier, with the aid of a crane and a block and tackle. One man attended the en-gine, another loaded the mammoth hod, a third at-tended to its safe delivery up a-loft, and without toil or fuss or sweat the little steam engine did the work of fully fifteen men. After seeing this quiet display of power in a new line, we marvelled much why steam cannot as readily be applied to fire enwhy steam cannot as readily be applied to fire engines as to locomotives, printing presses, weaving, hod-carrying, and, in short, to everything else.—
There are some things which steam cannot do, nor would any decent steam engine do them if it could; until steam fire engines can be made to do these things, they will be opposed by certain persons, and they must be expect to be compelled to submit to the withering rebuke and scathing contempt involved in being called "Great steam skwirts."

DR. A. KING, a practitioner of New York for the last thirty years, has opened a Dispensary on Market, between First and Second, nearly opposite the Graham House, Louisville, for the treatment of Private Diseases, such as Genorrhea, Syphilis, and all diseases of the skin and other derangements growing out of neglect or imperfect cure. His long exporience and success enable him to act with confidence. All those who may confide their cases to him may rest assured of having the disease effectually cured and every vestige of the difficulties perfectly eradicated from their constitutions.

STRICTTEES of cld or recent date effectually cured in a few days by an operation which causes no pain. Where a stricture exists, general derangement of the whole constitution must ensue, a continuance of which will bring on a train of symptoms to be dreaded, and will undermine the constitution and cause premature old age.

SEMINAL WEAKINESS.—Particular attention will be given to this disease and all the consequences growing out of it, brought on, in many cases, by the destructive habits of inconsiderate youth and excessive indulgence of the passions, which undermine the constitution, rendering the subject unfit for either business or society, and causing premature old age.

In all Nervous, Rheumatic, and Neuralgic Affections, it has in numerous instances, proved highly beneficial, and in others effected a decided cure.

This is a rurely vegetable compound, prepared onstrictly scientific principles, after the manner of the celebrated Holland Professor, Boerhave. Because of its great success in most of the European States, its introduction into the United States was intended more especially for those of our fatherland scattered here and there over the face of this mighty country. Meeting with great success among them. I now offer it to the American public, knowing that its truly wonderful medicinal virtues must be acknowledged.

its truly wonderful meatenal virtues must be acanowinedged.

It is particularly recommended to those persons whose constitutions may have been impaired by the continuous use of ardent spirits, or other forms of dissipation. Generally instentaneous in its effect, it finds its way directly to the seat of life, thrilling and quickening every nerve, raising up the drooping spirit, and, in fact, infusing new health and visor in the system.

NOTICE.—Whoever expects to find this a beverage will be disappointed; but to the sick, weak, and low spirited it will prove a grateful aromatic cordial, possessed of singular remedial properties.

THE DEFEAT OF PRIORESS AT LEWES RACES .-The London Star thus comments on the defeat of Mr. Ten Broeck's mare Prioress, at the Lewes

The success of Tournament for the Lewes County Cup yesterday, and the defeat of the American mare Prioress, have created a sensation. The Americans are sorely chagrined, and they regard the inglorious exhibition made by Prioress as humiliating and mortifying. And no wonder, for they openly boasted of the triumph of the "stars and stripes" over the flower of English turf celebrities. At Goodwood a lesson was taught them, for in their overwhelming confidence they allowed their horses to be ridden. lesson was taught them, for in their overwhelming confidence they allowed their horses to be ridden by native jockeys, totally ignorant of the art and tact exercised by an English ri ler. Still the boldness of the pace at Goodwood enabled Prioress to "live" with her competitors to nearly a distance from home. At Lewes the case was altered, for the race was to the swift, and Prioress, on whom Brother Jonathan had founded his hopes, was cut down without having a shadow of a chance. The American horses Prver and Lecomte may, however, yet prove horses Pryor and Lecomte may, however, yet prove that the reputation which preceded them to this country is not founded on beasting and error.

Factories Stopping.—Many of the mills have discontinued work one-sixth of the time, and others have entirely suspended. The factories in Newmarket have yielded to the pressure of the times and are still and silent; so at Great Falls, N. H., two of the mills have stopped for two months. There are some descriptions of goods that are in demand, and the mills manufacturing them will keep on; but we do not see what is to prevent many others from stopping as soon as they work up their present stock of cotton, though a reduction in the number of mills operating will be favorable to them. What stock they purchased when cotton was lower may be work they purchased when cotton was lower may be work ed up at the present prices of cloths, but where the raw material has to be purchased now, it leaves 10 margin for profit.—Newburyport Herald.

Mr. Brayman Re-Arrested.— Evidence having been received here fastening, as is alleged, upon James O. Brayman the robbery of the pest office drawer of McNally & Co. some three weeks since, and taking therefrom decoy letters containing counterfeit Jamestown (Ind.) bills, he was re-arrested last evening by Deputy United States Marshal Matthews and taken before United States Commissioner Moulton, where he waived examination and gave bail in the sum of $5,000, Rev. F. D. Burroughs and O. G. Carter becoming his sureties. He is now and O. G. Carter becoming his sureties. He is now held in $10,000, on both charges, to appear on the 7th

Great Britain.—The recent storm and floods had done considerable damage to the crops, &c., in various parts of England, but dry weather had prevailed during the three days preceding the Atlantic's departure, and it was hoped that the effects of the rain would be much alleviated.

France.—The free Napoleon on the 15th of August passed off well, although the out-door amusements were marred by wet weather. The Emperor on the occasion granted pardons, commutations, or reduction of punishment to 1,142 prisoners.

A Paris letter in the Daily News says:

It is generally asserted and believed in well informed quarters here that in case the Government succeeded in procuring the conviction, during his absence, for contumacy of Ledru Rollin, a demand will at once be made to the British Cabinet under the extradition treaty for the apprehension are surrender of that individual. No one doubts that a conviction will be readily obtained, the intervention of a jury in such cases not being necessary. It is further stated that already communications on this subject, of a private sort, have passed between Count Walewski and Lord Cowley, and the latter has, it is believed, admitted that such a conviction would bring Ledru Rollin within the provisions of the extradition treaty.

It is added that Ledru Rollin either has already

THE RELATIONS BETWEEN SPAIN AND MENICO.—It would, we venture to suggest, be useful if some independent member were to interrogate the Government, before Parliament rises, on the state of relations between Spain and Mexico, and on the part which her Majesty's Ministers have taken in those affairs, and are prepared to take in them; for, at present, a rupture and hostilities appear very imminent between the two States. Those hostilities cannot be otherwise than hurtful to English interests and English commerce, and they may also force on the further in tervention of a third power dangerous to the continued independence of Mexico, if the independence of that State be still considered an object of European concern.

It is now some months since Mexico sent to Europe two diplomatists for the purpose of arranging two disputes: one with England, the other with Spain. The dispute with England arose out of an insult offered during a local pronunciamento and throat-cutting in one of the Pacific ports of Mexico to an English consul, and out of the destruction of his commercial property. The diplomatist sent for that purpose to London was General Almoute, a man of spirit, sense, and European views; and by him an arrangement was come to with Lord Clarendon without any great difficulty. At all events, diplomatic relations between the two countries have been resumed.

Very different has been the success of the mission of Senor Lafragua. Then, however, the matters in controvery were, it must be admitted, more complicated; and, to add to the difficulty of their solution, diplomatic princilions invoked on both sides. The question at issue between Spain and Mexico are understood to be two—one personal, the other pecuniary.

Fifth Annual Fair.

SECOND DAY'S PROCEEDINGS. Heaven smiled yesterday in the same kindly man ner that gave glory and pleasure to the inaugurating occasion. There was sunshine of genuine September product, for the first of the fall months was extending to us his annual greeting. We enjoyed indeed a brilliance of sky and purity of atmosphere that through the summer is not seen. During the afternoon, however, clouds ominously overcast the heavens, but only to afford by contrast a more correct idea of the exceeding brightness of the opening

The exhibition was not so largely attended as on the previous day. Consequently there was a greater security for crinoline, and the ladies, attired in all the hues of the rainbow and speaking with their ever-eloquent eyes and witching smiles, had a better opportunity to spread themselves-to see and be seen. They of course availed themselves of the opportunity with characteristic grace, and uttered not a word of complaint against the seeming meagreness of the crowd.

THE DISPLAY OF CATTLE.

The leading feature of the day was the exhibition of eattle. Kentucky long since took precedence in the raising of the Durham stock. The herds in this State are now doubtless superior to any that can be found in England, whence the original breed was unported. They are stalwart, noble fellows, with such bovine qualities as must command everywhere admiration. Such Taurian prodigies-not monsters, but models of grace, good breeding, and elegance are rarely to be found. Mr. R. A. Alexander, of Woodford county, the most extensive stock raiser in America, was present with the finest specimens of his most magnifihent stock. It was scarcely worth while to compete with his famous breed, but still several of our agriculturalists did so with success.

The breed of the Devon cattle is not generally known in this section, but the specimens presented yesterday from abroad were of such an exalted character as to enforce them on public estimation.

It will be seen by the annexed list of premiums that the Judges were representing various portions of the Confederacy. They comprised an unusual body of intelligence, and appeared particularly skilled in the difficult art of distinguishing between the meritorious points of fine cattle.

The rings in which the Fat Bullocks were entered called out peculiar admiration. They were superb, and could a drove of one thousand such quadrupeds appear some morning in the New York stock markets they would elevate the heart of Solon Robinson (of the N. Y. Tribune,) above "Hot Corn" enthusiasm, and depress butcher's prices to a notch somewhere akin to common people's ideas of surloins and beef-steaks.

THE HORSE RING. Late in the afternoon the vast assemblage was relieved of the ennui that had been in some degree engendered by the protracted cattle display, by the entrance of the finest display of draft stallions and mares that we have ever seen. There were several rings, all of them so vieing in excellence that we feel unable to discriminate between their different excellencies. A display of saddle geldings was remarkably fine, and the premium awarded to Logan Railey, of Woodford county. His young son was also presented with a complimentary premium for the superiority of his equestrianship.

The exhibition of the finest horses is yet to occur. It will be unrivalled in America, as an inspection of the stables fully justifies us in remarking. There are specimens of the horse kind that for nobility, spirit, gentleness, and grace are not to be surpassed. In this connection we mention a few of the principal horses that are to be shown to-day and during the week:

THE FLORAL HALL. Although not fully prepared for opening, the eagerness of the people to see what was to be seen in the beautiful octagonal building was so great that the managers could not resist the popular desire, and accordingly threw open the Floral Hall. It presented an appearance of the most extraordinary beauty. At the entrance, the eye was dazzled with the panoramic display, and the source of smell intoxicated with the delicious odors that pervaded the entire building-odors more sweet and gratifying

There are a thousand noticeable and tasteable things about the hall; but those which attracted particular attention were grapes brought from Fall River, Mass., by Mr. N. F. Durfee. MANUFACTURES AND IMPLEMENT HALLS.

The busiest scenes of yesterday were those connected with the halls devoted to manufactures and agricultural implements. They were continually thronged with spectators, and the hum of industry that pervaded them was perhaps the most gratifying music that could be heard upon the grounds. We shall at our convenience, and when we have examined the machines and implements on exhibition award them the encomiums they may merit. Mr. Joseph E. Holmes and Wm. Lenox, the superintendents, are performing their duties admirably.

OBITUARY.

Died, on the evening of the 27th ult., at Equiria, the residence of his grandfather, SAMUEL E., infant son of James W. Blackburn, Esq.

There was much that was peculiarly afflicting in this sad dispensation of Providence. The young and lovely mother was scarcely permitted to feast her eyes on the perfect form of her angel boy, and pronounce her benediction on him; before the endearing name of mother had ever greeted herears and sladdened her heart, and almost before his infant cry had for the first time been husbed in silence by that fond mother's sweetest luilaby, she was herself in death and her babe an orphan. The grave watered by the tears of the afflicted and disconsolate husband is scarce permitted to become dry before his heart is made to bleed again, and his eyes to water anew the sod that covers his darling boy. But there is a consolation rich indeed beyond all that earth can give, left to him that mourns. It is found in the reflection that it is the special province of Heaven to save and to bless the just, the helpless, and the innocent; and if so, would not tears for the living be more appropriate than for the dead, by those who mourn.
